RESCUE HEROES HONOURED

Navy Days Here Again

EASTER week-end is always a notable landmark in the year for Portsmouth. The Navy brings thousands to the City and, if their impressions are favourable, may cause these visitors to decide to spend a longer holiday here during the summer.

It is, then, in the City's interest that it should look to please these early visitors to the best advantage. It was not taken that the exterior paintwork of the five Pradeaux Messy I know, in light, but parts of the facade did not look so spark and bright as they should be to find them in Coronation year.

Cutting the Cost

It was interesting to note that of 80 boys who set out of the country area, only 21 came to the school at the end of the year. Some of these entered the building industry. The number of indictable offences has actually increased by 25 per cent since the war and although there has been almost similar rise in school numbers, during the last year there were only 25 per cent compared with a rise in the total population of 25 per cent. For this position to exist after seven years of work is a cause for concern.

Disappointed

The cancellation of the procession to the cathedral for the coronation ceremony at Bournemouth Palace through the streets of the town, brought disappointment to many of the 18-year-old girls who were looking forward to the opportunity of meeting Her Majesty.

At the moment Miss Clarke is completing an 18-month secretarial course in residence at the Coronation year, when many more will be required to help with the coronation. It is a pity that the girls who were disappointed to see Her Majesty, will not be able to see her in person.

Those who would honour Queen Mary, should do so by determinedly following the example of her steadfast spirit, seeking to hold firmly to the deep roots of faith on which it rested.

A representative congregation heard the Bishop of Portsmouth (Dr. W. L. S. Fleming) offer this injunction at the Cathedral service held in commemoration of the late Queen yesterday.

Queen Mary had in a remarkable way carried forward into the present century the stability and the peace which she had brought to the country. Her steadfastness and her faith were the rock on which the country was built. Her example is one which we should all strive to follow.

Industrial Building New Factory

THE Ministry of Food's decision to recommend the granting of a £10,000 building grant to the Portsmouth potato crisp factory at Paulsgrove, is a welcome development. It is hoped that this grant will enable the factory to be completed by the end of the year.

The factory is being built on a site which was previously used for the production of potato crisps. The new factory will be a modern building and will be equipped with the latest machinery.

Learning the Job

VOLUNTEERS who join the 22nd Hampshire (Portsmouth) Battalion can be sure that they will get plenty of opportunity for learning the job. The battalion is a well-trained unit and its members are given the best possible training.

Young Offenders

JUVENILE crime increases in the immediate post-war period. This is due to a variety of factors, but the most important is the lack of proper schooling and training for the young.

The Government has taken steps to deal with this problem. It has established a system of juvenile courts and has increased the number of juvenile probation officers. It has also established a system of juvenile reformatory schools.
